Audrey Langland Sawed Bars in Twain

IN ORDER TO BREAK FROM JAIL

If a Heavy Sentence Was Imposed Upon Him—The Scheme Discovered by Deputy Sheriff Jones.

For some time past Deputy Sheriff Jones, who is at present acting as turnkey at the jail, has had a suspicion lurking about his cranial observatory that a plan was being concocted by the prisoners whereby they could make their escape. He has heard sounds emanating from the third floor in the dead of the night that made him think the prisoners were trying to saw their way out. He looked the bars over carefully, but could find no evidence to confirm his suspicions. He continued a nocturnal vigilance and yesterday morning, to satisfy himself whether it was rats or the work of a desperate prisoner sawing off the iron bars that had annoyed him in his slumbers, he went up to the third corridor and roused the prisoners out at 5 o'clock and looked them in the opposite side of the room. Jones is a man weighing about 230 pounds and he went through the corridor grasping the bars at intervals and setting back with all his might.

Found a Sawed Bar. When he reached the south end of the corridor a bar came out and Jones was flung flat on his back. The whole structure trembled and shook, but Jones gathered himself up, and making an examination of the bit of iron which he held found that it had been sawed out and put in place with colored putty. A space was large enough for a man to pass through. It was found that a bar over one of the windows had been sawed nearly off. The officer could not find the implement with which the work was done. By threatening to place the prisoners on a diet of bread and water, the officer learned from John Miller that the work was done by Audrey Langland. Langland was in jail all summer awaiting trial in the superior court for larceny, but had completed his sentence a few days ago. He had already been released when the sawing was discovered. Sheriff McQueen says no more visitors will be permitted to see prisoners, as it is an easy matter to conceal tools and pass them to prisoners. It is thought some visitor gave Langland a saw and he, expecting to get a long sentence from Judge Burlingame, tried to saw his way out.

Friedrich the Music Dealer.

Friedrich, the popular Canal street music dealer, won a well deserved triumph at the recent West Michigan fair. His attractions were not only more popular, with the vast multitude which attended the fair, than those of his competitors, but his display of instruments was far more elegant and attractive than others. The mandolin and piano were the most popular. The most enjoyable attractions offered at the great fair. The name of Friedrich stands today unapproachably ahead of all competitors as a leader in musical instruments and musical merchandise.

Shattuck & Trowbridge.

The din of horns, the beating of drums and the thunder of loud acclamatory may serve to attract the momentary attention of the multitude and to give temporary notoriety, but that which serves to establish a living memory and to subserve permanent renown is constancy and integrity of purpose and unwavering integrity. It is by the latter means that the firm of Shattuck & Trowbridge have attained and maintains its present supremacy in the merchant tailoring business. In their new and elegantly furnished parlors at Nos. 50 and 52 Monroe street, up stairs, the firm is displaying the finest stock in the state, and their trade is daily increasing.

A Great Increase.

It is one of the persons that after a few years absence can appreciate any marked changes that may have taken place in his native city during his absence. Within the past three years some great changes have occurred at the Business College and practical training school of A. S. Parish, in the Ledyard block. One would hardly believe that the large elegantly appointed institution of learning now owned by Mr. Parish, was the outgrowth of the college he controlled three years ago. His latest added feature to the establishment is the normal school, its object being to prepare young men and women for teaching.

Mrs. H. B. Deary will give her fall opening Monday and Tuesday at her dressmaking parlors, No. 680 Cherry street. No cards.

A MALARIA CURE

Which Does Not Injure the System,

But Never Fails to Cure Malaria, Acute and Chronic.

A person taking a course of treatment with Per-na for any malarial affection will find not only that he will be relieved quicker than with quinine, but that his system is not deranged in the slightest particular by the drug. Per-na gently stimulates the nervous system to resist the malarial poison, and at the same time gradually eliminates the poison itself from the system, which quinine or similar preparations can not do. In old cases of malaria, where the victim has gone the round of all kinds of treatment, has hopefully swallowed everything recommended for chills, and still continues to have them at the slightest exposure to cold, wet or fatigue, Per-na demonstrates its superiority over all other medicines by permanently curing all such cases.

A treatise on malaria will be sent free to any address by The Per-na Drug Manufacturing company of Columbus, Ohio.
